Basics of Forex

The Foreign Exchange markets were created to display the ever changing exchange rates of all Major and Minor currencies. As professional traders, we understand the ins and outs of all movements created within these markets.

What we do is take advantage of certain phases and trends in the markets as well as the impacts fundamental news has. The market follows such trends because commercial traders (like ourselves) along side central banks and corporate companies are manipulating price movement and data. This creates the opportunity for us and other traders to profit from the movements that the markets produce.

Essentially we look to buy into a currency or commodity when the price is low or, when we expect the price to rise. Similarly, we sell when prices are high and we are expecting the security to drop.

The Foreign Exchange market is the biggest market in the world with an average daily turnover of $7 trillion dollars, it is far bigger than stocks and shares so there is plenty of money to be made.

If you have any questions regarding what we do or how we do It, please speak to one of the team and we will be more than happy to answer any questions you have.
